

by Sir Frederick Pollock in an article upon the "Study of Legal Records." ("History," October, 1921, p. 155).

"Back of every man lies the story of his race," wrote Miss Agnes Repplier in the Atlantic Monthly for April, 1922, and we cannot understand the Maryland of to-day, unless we have made study of the detailed history of the past years of this part of the world. To make this study possible, such volumes as this are indispensable.
