

We see these successes in the war on poverty, in the reduction of the Federal income tax rate which stimulated the economy of Maryland to such a degree that we achieved unprecedented prosperity. We see it in the expansion of human rights and we see it in your firm resolve to assist the emerging nations of the world resist the forces of tyranny. Finally, Mr. President, we see it in your determination to prevent nuclear holocaust and to end contamination of the air we breathe and the water we drink.

Through this tremendous welcome today, Mr. President, we hope to convey to you some of the feelings of genuine respect and admiration that the people of Maryland hold for you. I am quite confident that Marylanders will manifest their approval of your Administration in a more significant fashion on November 3rd by voting overwhelmingly for both you and Senator Humphrey.

REMARKS, DEMOCRATIC RALLY AND BARBECUE

ELKTON, KENTUCKY

October 29, 1964

Governor Breathitt, Attorney General Matthews, Mr. Ockerman, Members of Congress, candidates, distinguished guests and fellow Democrats:

A few weeks ago, I had the pleasure of attending the Southern Governor's Conference in San Antonio, Texas, with your distinguished chief executive here in Kentucky, Ed Breathitt, his lovely wife, your former Governor Bert Combs, and a number of fine citizens from this state. Your representatives at that conference talked of Kentucky in such glowing terms that I was delighted when the invitation to visit this fine state arrived at my Annapolis office and, of course, I accepted immediately. Ladies and gentlemen, I'm happy to be here and extremely grateful for the courteous reception accorded to be here and extremely grateful for the courteous reception accordede me.

Maryland and Kentucky long have shared similar interests for we both grow tobacco in abundant quantities, we both breed thoroughbreds and, of course, we provide two of the three jewels in the triple crown of racing—the famous Kentucky Derby and the Pimilico Preakness. With so much in common, I am sure you can understand why
