

VENERIAL COMPLAINTS.
DR. WARNER'S practice has been very extensive both in public and private, daily experience convinces him of the propriety of his method of removing the venereal disease, in preference to any medicine used by known practitioners. He has removed the most desperate cases with ease and dispatch, after the failure of some of the most celebrated physicians in Europe and America. Complaints of the venery progress and debility thereof, from various causes and accidents, removed in the shortest possible space of time. As there are persons from various causes who cannot personally apply, it may be necessary to inform them, they may be relieved from a description of their complaint. Dr. W. warrants a cure in all cases. Masters of vessels and travellers may have their medicines prepared that they may be taken and the venereal cure may be effected, without the least restriction in drink or diet. N. B. Dr. Warner has removed from Cumberland Row to Conway street, next door to the corner of Hanover street, opposite the Rev. Mr. Oberlin's, near the Dutch church.

It is supposed he will assume the name of Harry Butler, and will show a short copy of the proceedings of the orphan's court of Anne Arundel county, in the state of Maryland, signed John Gasaway, register, stating (in substance) that Harry Butler (or Henry Butler) was bound apprentice to Henry Ridgely, until he arrived at the age of 21 years, it may be observed by examining the said short copy, that the term of apprenticeship expired on the 25th of December last. Harry Butler the real person mentioned in the proceedings of the orphan's court, is now in Baltimore, and has in one of his arms an inveterate and incurable white swelling, of long standing, which makes the diseased arm much larger than the other, whereas negro James is sound in both of his. If James should be apprehended in the city of Baltimore, or the counties of Anne Arundel or Baltimore, twenty five dollars will be the reward. It is expected he will go to Lancaster, Little York or Carlisle, in Pennsylvania. He was seen at Canton races on Tuesday last.

DISTRICT OF MARYLAND—to wit:
BE it Remembered, That on the eleventh day of February, in the twentieth year of the independence of the United States of America, John B. Colvin, of the said district, hath deposited in this office the title of a book, the right whereof he claims as author, in the following words, to wit:

A Magistrate's Guide,
AND CITIZEN'S COUNSELLOR;
 BEING

A Digest of those Laws of the state of Maryland most necessary to be known, and most useful in common transactions of life.

Interpersed with a variety of Practical Forms & Precedents, For the use of Justices of the Peace and others.

BY JOHN B. COLVIN.
 In conformity to the act of the Congress of the United States, entitled, "An act for the encouragement of learning, by securing the copies of Maps, Charts and Books, to the authors or proprietors of such copies, during the times therein mentioned."

PHILIP MOORE, Clk. D. C.

To the Citizens of Maryland.
 THE above work has been for some time past in the press, and is in considerable forwardness, and will be published with all possible expedition.

It is a maxim which has been long established, that "ignorance of the law excuseth no man;" and the reason of it is obvious: For if ignorance of the law were admitted as a just plea, laws would be without force, and consequently useless. As it is out of the power of our government to promulgate its laws in such a way as to communicate them to every individual of the community, it is necessary for every man to furnish himself with the means of information to a degree sufficient to enable him to discharge the duties of his station as a citizen of a free state.—

This is what he owes to his country. To himself he owes more. It is every man's duty to be acquainted with the laws of his own government sufficiently to enable him to avoid the shoals and quicksands of legal controversy, on which ignorance of the law might throw him, and occasion the wreck of his fortune, and, perhaps, of his happiness likewise. It is not only every man's interest, but it is every man's duty to his family to endeavor to understand enough of the acts of assembly and of the forms and proceedings in the administration of justice, to enable him to preserve his estate in a legal way, transact in a proper manner the business of life according to rule, to be able to recover his debts; and he ought to know the relative duties of one citizen to another.

The above work is an attempt to convey to the people of Maryland in as concise a manner as possible, correct knowledge of the provisions of those acts of assembly which are most necessary to be known and understood by the citizens of the state at large, together with some common law principles which are in force in Maryland. Matters that relate to accounts, and the evidence of debts, to administration of the estates of deceased persons, apprentices, articles of agreement, assignments, attachments, arrests, bonds, bills, bastardy, conveyancing, countables, contracts, dowers, deeds, distresses, executions, escape, evidence, felony, forgery, gaming, goal, goaler, guardians, homicide indictment, information, judgment, jurors, (and their duties,) justices of the peace, larceny, lewdness, libel, misdemeanor, nuisance, oaths, pardon, perjury, polygamy, the poor, presentment, prison-breaking, rape, recognizance, rescue, riot, robbery, search-warrants, sheriff, (his duties) slander, surety for the peace, slaves, treason, vagrants, warrants, wills, and a variety of other things, which it would be extremely tedious to describe at large, will be contained in this work. Besides laying down the law under each head, forms and precedents will be introduced for the information of magistrates and others. There will consist of precepts used by justices of the peace in the discharge of the duties of their station, and copies of all manner of instruments of writing used in bargaining, selling, and conveying every species of property, agreeably to the laws of Maryland. Under the head of accounts particular care has been taken to arrange all the evidence of debts, the manner and form of proof; and under the head of administration, the compiler has been careful to insert every thing that can be serviceable to executors and administrators. A very correct copy of a will is laid down, and the number of witnesses and manner of proving it explained, with respect to real and personal property. Marking and bounding land has occupied much attention, and the law and method of proceeding, together with the returns of commissioners are correctly stated. In short, whatever can be of service to the magistrate or to the citizen, has been carefully considered, and inserted in the book. To justices of the peace the work will be extremely valuable; and to the people at large of great benefit.

It has often been contended that in a free government every citizen has a right to participate equally in the offices of the state. To this proposition I have always assented; but at the same time I have uniformly thought there was another right not altogether unimportant, which is, that the community have a right to expect that every citizen should be qualified for the office which he fills. These two rights should go hand in hand. There is no office in the gift of our state executive of more importance or which may be more easily abused than that of a justice of the peace; and it not only requires a man of strong and good sense to fill it properly, but one somewhat acquainted with the fundamental principles of law in general, and with our local laws in particular: A knowledge of the latter in some degree, is, in fact, indispensably requisite: But as justices of the peace are generally and very properly appointed from among the honest and independent part of the citizens of the several counties, whose thoughts have been turned to other pursuits in common, but who, nevertheless, have found understandings, it is not to be expected that they can at once dive into the huge quarto volumes of Killy's compilation and drag thence the pith and marrow of the acts of assembly, and at the same time learn the form and manner of issuing innumerable precepts required by their official duty. Hence the great necessity for a work embracing all these particulars in a small compass, so as to form a complete Guide and Counsellor.

The duties of jurors have been stated with precision; and as every man is liable to serve the public in that capacity, that topic alone will render the book of general utility. Although I have thus copiously dwelt upon the advantages and merits of this work, I by no means conceive that it will be free from some few imperfections; nor do I arrogate to myself the sole merit of collecting the forms and precedents together. I am by no means desirous to sacrifice truth in this particular to my vanity, I have had very able assistance from a few well informed friends, whose disinterested services have been of incalculable use to me; and without which, indeed, I should have found myself at a great loss for those numerous practical forms which the work will contain, amounting in the whole to more than two hundred. It would take an individual year, perhaps, to gather so large a collection, and they might at last be incohered: Whereas the above book will furnish the whole at once, and in a proper form.

The following letter from judge Duval, (to whom the first eighty pages of the work had been submitted after coming from the press) will convey some idea of the merits of the book—
 "Washington, December 27, 1804.
 SIR, I have received your letter inclosing eighty pages of a work prepared by you, in which you have begun a digest of those parts of the laws of Maryland which more frequently occur in the common transactions of life, and which are therefore deemed the most useful. I have perused it and have no hesitation in pronouncing the utility of such a work. The law appears to be carefully abstracted, and the forms well chosen. It will be found useful to magistrates and to the people in general, and merits their patronage. It is adapted more particularly to the information of those who have not the means of purchasing, and the leisure to examine our laws at large. In a free government, the laws cannot be too extensively circulated; and he who adds to the diffusion of a knowledge of them, contributes to increase the comforts and happiness of society, and deserves their encouragement and support.
 I am, with respect and esteem,
 Your obedient servant,
G. DUVALL.
 Mr. John B. Colvin."

Wishing to make the book cheap, the terms will be as follow, to wit:
 I. It will be printed with a good type on good paper, and contain above 300 pages Octavo—perhaps 400.
 II. The price will be 2 dollars to subscribers, and 2 dollars 50 cents to non-subscribers. No money required till the work is delivered.
 IV. Persons procuring eleven subscribers, and becoming answerable for the money, shall receive a twelfth copy gratis.
 The acts of assembly, up to the close of the last session, will be attended to.

As the above fellow has taken with him a number of clothes, it is not necessary to describe his dress, as it is probable the may change it—
